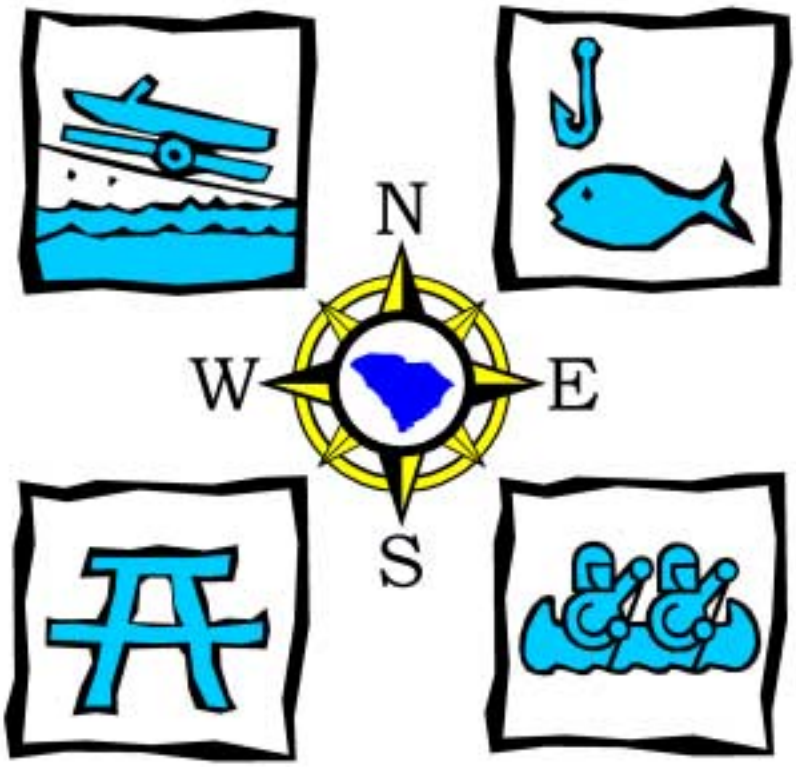
South Carolina Boating Facilities Guide 2002

A county by county list of public boating facilities in South Carolina.



The South Carolina Department of Natural Resources
Engineering Section

Introduction

The construction of new public boat landings and improvements to public landings across South Carolina makes launching and loading boats more convenient for the thousands of recreational boaters, anglers, hunters, and nature enthusiasts who venture onto the state's public waterways and coastal waters. Many facilities listed here contain features to provide handicapped access, such as van accessible parking and barrier-free fishing access.

This document is a county by county summary of public boat landings and includes all the public boating access facilities on the state's navigable streams, rivers, lakes, reservoirs and coastal waters that have been constructed, upgraded or repaired with engineering consultation by the South Carolina Department of Natural Resources over the past 25 years.

Boat Landing Details
For each public landing, the information includes: specific road directions to the location, the body of water it is situated on and the main features of the landing, such as number of launching ramps, any restrooms, and parking capacity. The latitude and longitude are included for many landings, but they are approximate coordinates and should not be used for navigational purposes. The road directions should be used.

Boat Landing Maintenance
Maintenance authority for each public boat landing will vary by county and sometimes by landing. Most landings have a local group that monitors litter problems.

Boat Landing Funding
The construction and upgrading of public boating accesses is funded primarily by the Water Recreation Resource Fund, which is derived from a portion of the state gas tax and are earmarked for improving use and accessibility to the state's public waterways. Each of South Carolina's 46 counties receives a portion of this fund based on the number of registered boats per county.

Commercial Sale of List Prohibited
This list of all South Carolina public boating access facilities is provided free for use by members of the public who visit the Internet Home page of the South Carolina Department of Natural resources. It will not be distributed as a printed publication due to costs. Significant cost savings will be realized by making this list available through the Internet. Republication of this document for commercial sale is prohibited.

Unimproved Landings Not Listed
This list of boat landings does not include the unimproved boat landings and privately-owned landings across the state which have not been under the engineering oversight of the South Carolina Department of Natural Resources.

How to Use
The total boat landing list of nearly 100 pages may be searched quickly using the FIND button (The keystroke is Ctrl f) within Adobe Acrobat Reader and searching by landing name, body of water, county, nearest town or the number of the highway or county road where it is located.

Appendix B— Inland Bank, Pier, and Bridge Fishing

Fred L. Day Boat Landing and Handicapped Fishing Facility:
Located at "Duck Pond" 2.8 miles south of Cross off S.C. Highway 6 in Berkeley County, this facility includes a single-lane, reinforced concrete boat launching ramp, a special fishing dock (50 feet long with a 10-by 24-foot T platform at the end) designed for handicapped and elderly anglers and a graveled parking area which accommodates 35 vehicles and trailers.

Old Chehaw Public Boat Landing:
Located in Colleton County near Wiggins, this facility has a 60-foot fixed dock adjacent to the river which anglers may fish from and a 12 by 20-foot floating dock.

Lake Monticello in Fairfield County:
Located north of Columbia off S.C. Highway 215, this 6,800-acre reservoir owned by S.C. Electric and Gas Company features a 200-foot fishing pier. Anglers who fish this lake from boats should remember that the water level rises and falls rather sharply due to the operation of a power plant. Regular state fishing laws apply. Several public use areas, including Fairfield County Park, are marked with signs. Anglers are reminded not to harass the Canada geese nesting here. Designated islands and goose feeding and nesting areas are closed to public access and marked with signs. These geese are part of a statewide wildlife department project to establish a resident population of the Canada goose in South Carolina. The birds are protected from hunting statewide. For a map and regulations, write to: S.C. Electric and Gas Company, Lake Management Department, 039, Columbia, S.C. 29218.

Lake Monticello Sub-impoundment in Fairfield County:
Fishing on this 300-acre lake, owned by S.C. Electric and Gas Company, is authorized on Wednesdays and Saturdays only from one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset. The public boat landing and picnic area can be reached from County Road 99 off S.C. Highway 215. There is a good deal of opportunity for fishing from the shoreline or banks and from small boats. Only electric trolling motors may be operated in the sub-impoundment. The daily fish limit is 25 bream, 5 catfish and 5 largemouth bass (12-inch minimum), with not more than 35 fish per angler in possession. It is unlawful to use minnows for bait here. For a map and regulations, write to: S.C. Electric and Gas Company, Lake Management Department, 039, Columbia, S.C. 29218.

Lake Warren in Hampton County:
Owned by the S.C. Department of Natural Resources, this public fishing lake features a 350-foot fishing pier with a 10 by 25-foot T platform at the end. This shallow 400-acre lake has picnic facilities and is located about 4 miles west of Hampton just off Highway 363.

Lake Bowen in Spartanburg County:
Owned by the Spartanburg Public Works Commission, this 1,600-acre lake near Campebello can be fished only by purchasing a permit from the City of Spartanburg. The lake has a new fishing pier on Highway 37 and which extends 84 feet with a 10 by 24-foot terminal platform. This replaces fishing from a nearby bridge. Seasonal and daily permits may be purchased from the lake warden's office.

Lake Taylor Blalock in Spartanburg County:
Owned by the Spartanburg Public Works Commission, this 750-acres lake on the North Pacolet River about 9 miles north of Spartanburg is also open to fishing by permit only. The lake has new fishing pier which is 108-feet long with a 12 by 24-foot terminal platform. Seasonal and daily permits may be purchased from the lake warden's office. Only boats with trolling motors of 10 horsepower or less are allowed.

Appendix C— Bank and Pier Fishing on Corps Reserviors

Lake Hartwell in Anderson and Oconee counties:
This U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reservoir on the Savannah River along the Ga.-S.C. border has some 963 miles of shoreline, a majority of which is open for bank fishing. Bank fishing is permitted at the Singing Pines Recreation Area in Anderson and 44 other day-use and boat launching areas in both states. County and state parks along both sides of the lake afford fishing access, as do county and state roads that dead-end into the lake. Fishing is allowed from the old Highway 23 bridge across the Tugaloo Creek arm of the lake in Oconee County, S.C. and Stevens County, Ga. There are three fishing piers below Hartwell Dam off Highway 129 in Anderson County. A reciprocal agreement allows Georgia and South Carolina to honor the other state's sport fishing licenses on either side of the main lake. For information write: U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Resource Manager's Office, P. O. Box 278, Hartwell, Ga. 30643 A detailed navigation chart of the lake is available for $2 from this address. Make any checks payable to F&A Officer.

Lake Richard Russell in Anderson and Abbeville counties:
This U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reservoir on the Savannah River along the Ga.-S.C. border has some 542 miles of shoreline, all of which is open for bank fishing where access exists, specifically adjacent to bridge crossings and where old county or state roads dead-end into the lake. Three old bridges are being used as fishing piers: 1) the old Ga. Hwy. 365 bridge, accessible from S.C. Highway 181; 2) the S.C. 184 bridge near Lowndesville, S.C. and 3) the old S.C. Hwy. 81 bridge over the Rocky River arm of the lake. Two new fishing piers have been built at in South Carolina Latimer, 2 miles from Calhoun Falls off Hwy 81 and in Georgia on Ga. Highway 368 over Coldwater Creek. Two future fishing piers will be at McCalla State Park in S.C. and Coldwater State Park in Ga. A reciprocal agreement allows Georgia and South Carolina to honor the other state's sport fishing licenses on either side of the main lake. For more information write to: U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Resource Manager's Office, Rt. 4, Box 244B, Elberton, GA. 30365 A detailed navigation chart of the lake is available for $2 from this address. Make any checks payable to F&A Officer.

Clark's Hill Lake in Abbeville and McCormick counties:
This U.S. Army Corps of Engineers reservoir on the Savannah River along the Ga-S.C. border has some 1200 miles of shoreline, much of which is open for bank fishing. In both states there are a total of 14 launching ramps and 9 recreational day-use areas that permit bank fishing. County and state roads that dead-end into the lake also afford access, along with pull-offs at bridges. County and state parks afford additional fishing access. Five public fishing piers have been built on the lake, one of which is along the river below the Clark's Hill dam off Highway 221. Five posted fish attraction areas can be reached by casting from the shore. A free list is available of 22 recently installed near shore fish attractors, marked with red ring buoys. A reciprocal agreement allows Georgia and South Carolina to honor the other state's sport fishing licenses on either side of the main lake. For more information write to: U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Resource Manager's Office, P. O. Box 10, Clark's Hill, S.C. 29821 A detailed navigation chart of the lake is available for $2 from this address. Make any checks payable to F&A Officer.
